The RECOVER Initiative has resulted in completely updated resuscitation guidelines that were arrived at through a collaborative effort between ACVECC and VECCS involving a year of intensive study, literature reviews, research and consensus building by over 100 diplomates from ACVECC, ACVA, ACVIM and other specialties. A full description of the RECOVER project findings with all associated manuscripts are in the June 2012 supplemental issue of JVECC which can be accessed by clicking on "Recover CPR Initiative" link.

These concepts are illuminated in a dynamic on-line training course available on Veritas. The content is based on the new guidelines and authored by Daniel J. Fletcher, PhD, DVM, Assistant Professor of Emergency and Critical Care at the Cornell University College of Veterinary Medicine and Co-Chair of the RECOVER Initiative. Participants who complete all five modules of the CPR course on Veritas will receive a certificate from ACVECC officially documenting their certification.

Great staff training for every practice!
